

The Royal Javanese Lulur is an authentic and luxurious ritual from the royal palaces of Central Java, Indonesia.

This ancient tradition typically lasted for the 40 days prior to the wedding ceremony. During this time, the bride was confined from outside influences, surrounded only by women while preparing for her marriage. The bride received luxuriously pampering treatments including relaxing aromatic massages, exfoliating scrubs, and fragrant floral oil applications leaving the skin with an exotic scent. Traditionally the ritual was performed by the other women in the family and community, as a way of having private time together to pass on wisdom, share secrets of intimacy, and provide marital tips. The goal was to strengthen the immune system, brighten and soften the skin, and create a sweet-smelling essence so as to present the bride to her betrothed as a “present” on their wedding day.

In modern Indonesia, the ritual now lasts only seven days, but still upholds the sacred traditions set forth, as well as all the luxurious body treatments. Our therapists are purposefully trained for this ritual, upholding the ancient wisdom of its founders and delivering a truly authentic (albeit shortened) Royal Javanese Lulur experience.
